Preparing for autumn

Living Large

Humour by Steve Galea

Here we are near the end of summer and on the cusp of a brand new autumn. That means leaves will be changing. I'm not talking about colour either. That part is fine.

No, the change I'm talking about is location.

They are moving from the branches and twigs high above to the ground, where if you don't do things right, they will quickly become your problem.

No one likes raking leaves. Fortunately, there are 10 easy ways to avoid this:

1. Let all your neighbours know you are a huge Leafs fan. Then, when they start muttering about all of them on your lawn, remind them they were forewarned.
2. Heli-port: Just for autumn, open up an executive heliport on your front lawn. One or two landings a week and you won't have to worry.
3. Have leaf blower races: There are a certain segment of people who love loud noises and races as evidenced by the popularity of NASCAR and other events. All you need to do is set up a track on your lawn and bleachers and call it the Leaf Blower 500. Heck, you might even make money off the concession stand.
4. Caterpillar farming: Sometime in summer, start raising tent caterpillars on the back 40. After they defoliate all your trees take them to auction. If you lose, there is probably a write off.
5. Intimidation: Buy three things: a wood chipper, a chainsaw and an ax. Then place them in front of the nearest tree and announce, "I don't like leaves on my lawn. Understand me."
6. Leave for the fall: Come back when the first snow covers the ground. Problem solved.
7. Replace all your deciduous trees with pines: this might sound like a lot of work but in the long run it's still more fun than raking leaves.
8. Place plastic over your entire lawn: I grew up in a neighbourhood where all the Italian women covered their furniture in plastic to protect it from the kids. That's where I got this idea. All you need to do is cover the lawn and roll it up after the leaves are finished falling. It looks a bit tacky but, trust me, it works.
9. Call a rake company and offer up your property as a testing ground for their prototypes and new models.
10. Tell all the leaves that you are about to have a good, old fashioned slide show on the front lawn every Monday. If they are like everyone else you know, they'll make themselves scarce that day.

Dogs get air at show

The Ultimate Air Dogs competition was featured at the Cottage Country Dog Show at Head Lake Park in Haliburton Aug 15. The dogs competed in splash downs to see who could jump the furthest. The second annual show saw much better weather than last year, when it rained on the competition. ELIZABETH BATE staff

Visitors share their perfect #NowhereMoments in Ontario's Highlands

Tired of always having to be somewhere, visitors to Ontario's Highlands this summer have embraced the concept of going nowhere by sharing their own #nowheremoments on social media. This user-generated content has inspired Toronto and Ottawa area visitors to dream and explore the region both in person and online.

"The ultimate sign of success for a marketing campaign is advocacy – instances where fans fuel the flames of interest through word of mouth, sharing of brand-created content, and the creation of their very own content to show their connection," says Marc Whitehead, Senior Strategist for customer engagement agency Karo Group. "That's what has happened with the #nowheremoment campaign for Ontario's Highlands. Not only have we seen unprecedented growth in followers and fans to OHTO's Facebook, Instagram and Twitter feeds, but visitors and operators alike have demonstrated their love for the idea by creating original content of a #nowheremoment in their own lives, which they've been sharing with their followers all summer long."

This summer, visitors from far and wide have left their worries behind, unplugged, thrown away their schedules, and shared their moments of relaxation, excitement, and wonder. Images of sunsets, babbling brooks, lakeside bonfires, white water rafting, swimming, and simply enjoying life have displayed the beauty and magic that can only be found, right here, in nowhere.

Visitors who use the #nowheremoment hashtag when posting videos or images on Twitter, Instagram, or Facebook are automatically entered into a contest to win one of three $1,500 custom getaways to Ontario's Highlands. Winners have already been chosen for June and July, but Ontario's Highlands Tourism Organization (OHTO) is reminding visitors that summer is not over yet as there's still one trip up for grabs during the month of August.

"We're encouraging people to take advantage of what's left of summer by exploring the region and all that it has to offer," says Nicole Whiting, Executive Director of OHTO. "Step out of the office and into our world to reconnect with friends, to experience something new and of course, to wander."

Tourism operators throughout the region can get involved by sharing the #nowheremoment that visitors can experience with them. Many local businesses have already begun to do this and have seen increased success and interest.

"The #nowheremoment campaign is an excellent opportunity to get more exposure for my company," says Barrie Martin, Experience Broker for Yours Outdoors in Haliburton, Ontario. "I use the hashtag often on my social media – Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram. In return, my posts have been liked, shared and followed by the travelling consumer, DMOs and OHTO. My target market, young urban professionals, has responded well to the campaign."

The popularity of the #nowheremoment campaign has increased visitor interest in the region both in person and online. Since this campaign focuses on not only bringing visitors to the region, but engaging them before, during, and after their stay, unique visits to Ontario's Highlands' website, and to those of participating operators' throughout the region have increased as potential visitors search out and dream up their perfect #nowheremoment.

Kids get ready for kindergarten with School's Cool program

By Jenn Watt

When four-year-old Tara first entered the classroom in Stuart Baker Elementary School this summer, she wanted to run right back to her mother.

Shy and uneasy with the new environment and kids, Tara's main challenge was softening the emotional attachment to her mother enough to attend School's Cool – a summer program preparing children for kindergarten.

"At the beginning, she wouldn't participate," says mother Brandy Buckler. "I had to sneak out."

By the end of the six weeks, Tara was better integrated and more secure.

"She's participating in everything," Buckler says. "She just looks at me and says, 'bye.'"

Tara will be entering junior kindergarten in a month and the School's Cool experience has helped her prepare to let go and enjoy school.

On Thursday, Aug. 13, 14 children graduated from the program and their families and friends gathered in Room 17 at SBES to congratulate them. Donning paper mortarboards decorated with feathers and stickers, the kids sang A Circle's Like A Ball and No More Monkeys Jumping on the Bed as they had their pictures taken by a crowd of proud adults.

When each child is enrolled in the program, their parents discuss specific goals they have, says co-ordinator Krista Patterson.

Parents are given updates on their child's progress verbally when they drop them off in the mornings and also receive a weekly newsletter about the class. At the end, a final letter is given to parents about how their child progressed.

Because the children are pre-kindergarten, skills such as listening for long periods of time, sharing with others, recognizing numbers from one to 10 and problem solving techniques are emphasized, instructor Dylan Woods explained.

Children entering kindergarten from School's Cool "aren't starting from square one," Woods says, and in some cases, that makes all the difference.

Woods says he sees improvement in all the children, though each child develops in different ways and at different times.

SIRCH Community Services runs School's Cool and executive director Gena Robertson attended the ceremony on Thursday.

"This year, TLDSB [Trillium Lakelands District School Board] contributed funding so that children can enter kindergarten more prepared," Robertson says.

Children who register for the program attend four days a week, three hours a day for six weeks. The student-teacher ratio is eight to one. This year, 14 students attended in Haliburton and 16 in Minden.

"It builds confidence and familiarizes them with routine," she says.

Parent Heather Bramham signed her daughter Julia, 3, up for the class to help her get used to other kids.

She says she noticed her daughter became more interested in her fellow students and the activities over the six weeks.

"Julia tells me she's excited [for junior kindergarten]," Bramham says. School's Cool brought in visitors to get kids used to new concepts like the school bus and the dental hygienist.

Parent Adrienne Clark signed her daughter Kalli Berry up for School's Cool to focus on Kalli's concentration skills.

Clark says her daughter is full of energy and it was hard to get her to sit still for long periods of time – something kids need to be able to do in kindergarten. Kalli is her second child in the program and Clark says she saw improvements during the summer.

"It helped. Being able to sit still was the big thing," she says, noting her third child will be enrolled when she gets to be the right age.

A girl receives her certificate for completing School's Cool from Krista Patterson on Aug. 13, 2015 at Stuart Baker Elementary School in Haliburton. Fourteen kids in Haliburton and 16 in Minden completed the school-readiness program this summer. JENN WATT Staff

County Life

And the winner is: Fifth Business

Erin's Editions

Erin Kernohan-Berning
Branch Services Librarian

Haliburton County Reads: The Summer Sessions is over and the book our panelists felt that all of Haliburton County should read is Fifth Business by Robertson Davies, strongly defended by Greg Roe.

For the Haliburton County Public Library's 50th anniversary celebrations, we decided to use the winner of this year's Haliburton County Reads as our One Book One Community.

One Book One Community is a program in which a library picks a book and gets as many people as they possibly can in the community to read it. Then they offer various events and resources about the book to get everyone talking about it.

Fifth Business by Robertson Davies was written in 1970 and tells the story of Dunstan Ramsey, a retired school teacher who has just been unceremoniously fluffed off in the school newsletter as a doddering old man handed the golden watch. Furious, the book is a letter to the headmaster explaining that his life was so much more than that, and his extraordinary story begins one fateful night when as a child in his tiny hometown of Deptford his best friend and enemy, Boy Staunton, throws a snowball at Dunstan… and misses. What follows is a number of interwoven tales including the story of Paul Dempster who as a boy ran away with the circus, Dunstan's rebirth at the battle of Passchendaele, Boy's insatiable ambition, and a quest for an elusive saint.

Robertson Davies is a Canadian literary heavyweight, with Fifth Business listed at number 40 on the American Modern Library's readers' list of the 100 best novels of the 20th century. But does this 20th century classic hold up to a 21st century reading? The short answer is yes.

Fifth Business is just under 300 pages long making it a fairly short book, but like good produce it is heavy for its size. Full of metaphor, classical allusion, and a flair for language, it might inspire more studious readers to keep a dictionary and a pad of paper by your side as you meander through the many tangents that Davies explores. But for the reader who wants a quick punchy read, all is not lost. Fifth Business is very much readable at face value, and the plot is satisfying even without being acquainted with the likes of Candaules and Gyges. Since the novel is so layered, you can pick the layer that is right for you.

But why stop at just one book when there are so many to enjoy? While the point of One Book One Community is that everyone is talking about the same book – in line at the grocery store, going for a walk in the park, on the phone while you make your dentist appointment, or wherever you happen to be around people, it is as important to just talk about what you are reading. Fifth Business is a great gateway to many other books – including the other two books in the Deptford Trilogy, The Manticore and World of Wonders.

So if you have recently read Fifth Business, or you feel like Robertson Davies might be biting off a little more than you'd like to chew, you can start out with a book that has a similar theme. We'll be discussing some of these themes and read-alikes in future columns, so even if Robertson Davies isn't your cup of tea, you'll be sure to find something that you like.

Stay tuned in September when we launch our One Book One Community programming, and let's get Haliburton County reading!
